SECOND CLASS TICKETS

SOME OF THE ROADS TO WITHDRAW THEM FROM SALE ENTIRELY.

The Monon Making Good Speed Records-General Offices of Pennsylvania Lines to Go to New York.

The persistent efforts on the part of railroad men to retire all second-class tickets, which are a rate-disturbing element, are now bearing fruit. Yesterday local passenger officials received communications from Chicago lines to the Northwest in the form of a new rate sheet, on which second-class tickets to Colorado points are entirely withdrawn. Similar action has been taken by several other roads reaching Western territory, and it is believed the movement will become general. The movement against the second-class ticket has been in existence for a good many months, and, like other measures aimed at upholding rates, has had a stormy career so far, but is now able to see smooth waters ahead. Railroad men object to it because they say it is a useless sacrifice of revenue, as it cultivates little or no business and allows much of the regular legitimate travel to go at a rate that is lower than they would otherwise pay. Then they have had a feeling that it is not altogether democratic to have more than one class of rates, hence they have expressed a desire to exclude them. The second-class ticket has differed from the firstclass in one respect only. It was given at a lower rate, but permitted the traveler everything given to the first-class passenger except the privilege of taking a sleeper. tailroad men say that the second-class ticket, like the homeseekers' rate, must go.

Lackawanna Causes Protest.

The clerk in charge is always in readiness to supply a prospective traveler with tickets from Chicago to New York, but as a matter of fact he has no tickets in his office from Chicago to Buffalo, and on one pretext or another has the traveler wait while he goes or sends by a rear-door route to the Nickel-plate office for a ticket to Buffalo. This is exactly what scalpers do, except that the scalper usually cuts the rate in addition to securing a commission from the railroad for selling its ticket. The other Eastern lines complain most of the fact that the Lackawanna office is practically an additional city ticket office of the Nickel-plate. Years ago all the railroads terminating at Chicago entered into an agreement that none of them would have more than one ticket office in addition to the union office at the depot used by each line. The Lackawanna professes to show no partiality toward any of the lines from Chicago to Buffalo, but nevertheless 95 per cent. of its passengers go from there over the Nickel-plate.

PERMANENT ORGANIZATION FORMED IN GOVERNOR'S OFFICE.

Nearly All Those Who Made the Trip Present at Meeting-Governor Elected President.

A permanent organization of the Indiana people who went to Texas last October to return the flag of Terry's Texas Rangers was effected in an interesting meeting which was held in the Governor's parlors at the Statehouse yesterday morning. Although not directly connected with the G. A. R. encampment the meeting was suggested, and, in large measure, made possible by the holding of the encampment at this time. A delegation of members of the Indiana Department, G. A. R., accompanied the Governor and his military staff on the and Wheeling Junction, a distance of nine now historic Texan trip. The fact that miles, there are nine interlocking plants, these prominent G. A. R. men were in the city suggested to Col. Charles E. Wilson, who engineered the famous Southern journey, that the time was eminently appropriate for the formation of an organization, the object of which should be to commemthe removal of the auditing department of orate the event by future meetings, at the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern from | which it will be discussed in all its delightful phases. Colonel Wilson's plan met with the hearty approval and co-operation of who was formerly auditor of the Indiana. Governor Mount, who was the central figure of the Texas expedition.

> When the meeting was called to order by Judge Timothy E. Howard, of South Bend, who acted as presiding officer, the executive reception room was nearly filled by men and women who had journeyed to the Lone Star State to witness the memorable return of a battleflag captured in the civil strife of 1861-65. Judge Howard, who represented the G. A. R., inaugurated a short session of speechmaking with an eloquent and pleasingly reminiscent address, in the course of which he reviewed attractively greatness of spirit displayed in being the first to return a captured battle trophy. Major Gustavus V. Menzies, also a promi nent G. A. R. man, followed Judge Howard in an address which those who heard it said was conspicuous for its brilliant elo-

GOVERNOR AS PRESIDENT. At the conclusion of the speeches it was plainly apparent that there could be only one result of a vote to establish a permanent organization. Col. David A. Coulter, of Frankfort, a member of Governor Mount's staff, made the motion, which was at once seconded by Col. Charles Arthur Carlisle, of South Bend, also on the staff, and, being put to the assembled members, was carried overwhelmingly. Governor Mount was unanimously chosen as president for the first year of the organization, and Col. Charles E. Wilson was selected to act as secretary for the same period. Col. Wilson remarked with a sickly smile, "I always get these jobs that involve work." When the question of the next meeting place was broached Col. Winfield T. Durbin, of Anderson, one of the highest officers on the gubernatorial staff, seized upon the opportunity to make an exceedingly witty address. He recalled to the assemblage in a facetious manner that on the journey to Texas a mock state convention was held, and that he was then nominated for Governor of Indiana-months before the honor his probable successor in the executive of Secretary Wilson was asked what title had been chosen for the new organization. "The child has only been born," said he, actually became his. In closing, Colonel

Durbin raised quite a laugh by tendering the use of the Governor's parlors to the organization for its next session. Governor

LIEUT. GARBER WRITES

An Interesting Letter on Conditions in the Philippines.

M. C. Garber, postmaster at Madison, Ind., and one of the most prominent and influential citizens of "The City 'Neath the Hills," has a son, Guilford S. Garber, of whom he feels justly proud. Guilford is a lieutenant of the Thirtieth United States Volunteer Infantry, stationed at Lucban in the Philippine islands. In a letter to his father, dated March 24, received a few days ago, Lieutenant Garber tells some interestto the charge of burglary. He was fined $1 | ing facts and gossip about the natives of those islands who are just now giving "Uncle Sam" so much trouble. The letter

"We know a good deal about the province

now. At every garrison our companies have gone out and released Spanish prisoners, Edward Slaughter, charged with assault | who have told us with knowledge the strength and whereabouts of the Insurrectos. I don't know myself the facts in detail about the southern and southeastern ons, pleaded guilty to the latter charge | end of this province, but there are twentyfive rifles at Sampaloc and fifteen at Mauban, in our end. General Manolos has fifty rifles and he is running to and fro in the mountain fastnesses, trying to keep away from us. The parts of the province garripassed her house on Toledo street and she soned by the rest of the regiment contains fired a revolver. She then disappeared and a few scattered bands like the smaller ones mentioned, but not many. The Spaniards all say the Filipinos are terribly afraid of us. The band at Sampoloc are the mountaineers that live there, scattered over the almost "Kid" Davis, charged with assault and A Spaniard escaped from there Monday a battery with intent to kill, pleaded guilty to week ago, and made his way here traveling the charge of assault, the intent being dis-missed, and was fined $25. He shot Robert Steele hid him during the day and that night we went to Sampoloc and got there at 2 a. m. From then till dawn we climbed over the mountain side, guided by the Spanated nine Spaniards and captured eleven Insurrectos and some rifles. The Spaniards have been held in slavery. That is the precise word. Each Spaniard had been given a different Filipino whom he called his 'arno' considerable or master, and the Filipino called the Spanlard his 'muchacho' or 'boy,' which signifies menial servant. They were half clothed and had been forced to do work in the rice field, kitchen, etc.; in fact, all the menial work about the mountaineer's establishment. The same system prevailed all over Tayabas province, and still does in the more accessible provinces that we have thus far been unable to penetrate, but which we know exists, just as we know of these before we found them. We went into Mauban and liberated one Spaniard and searched for others, but had no guide and met with no more success. Coming back, we were fired on in a gorge, either by fifteen men who we knew are stationed near Maubon, or by Manolos's fifty-we don't know which -as our men replied from the road and the Insurrectos quit within fifteen minutes and got away through the undergrowth. "To-day a Spaniard came into Lucban who escaped at Mauban a day or two ago and has traveled here by night. He saw us at Mauban when we were there on the above mentioned trip, but could not get to us. He was with fifty insurgents with > the Americans to shoot at us. "General Caniles is in Laguna province, and has a few more men and does some depredating. Company G had a half hour's fight with 130 men of his troops, while we were returning from Majayjay some time ago. I mailed you a letter just before we started out from here, saying we were going out to spend three days and nights

> Manolos, who he says lay in the woods and watched our camp the whole night and day

we were there, but who were too afraid of prowling among the hills. We are still making some exhausting forays and having small skirmishes every little bit. Between times we work, beautifying our city, which has a population of six thousand and are enjoying life very prepared to stay here until July, 1901."

THE SOY BEAN.

It Can Be Grown in Indiana, and Is Good Forage Crop.

"The general failure of the clover crop in Indiana," said Prof. W. C. Latta, superintendent of the agricultural experiment station at Purdue University, "has brought to the experiment station numerous queries as to the merits of other leguminous crops. Many of these inquirles relate to the soy bean as a forage and fertilizing crop. The soy bean is a leguminous plant native to Southern Asia. It is an erect, branching annual plant, one and one-half to three and one-half feet high, according to soil and variety. It is a very leafy plant and bears an abundance of seed in short, flattened pods. The stems, leaves and pods are more or less covered with short, stiff, reddish hairs. The soy bean will grow well in the corn belt and is adapted to corn soils. It will grow fairly well on soils too much worn for clover, but t thrives better on good land. The so bean, like the cow pea, can be grown and matured between spring and fall frosts. It is also a good drought enduring crop, if well started before dry weather sets in. Soy beans may be sown broadcast or in drills. If grain is desired, sow in drills, dropping the seeds singly, four to six inches apart, in rows two to three feet apart. Sow one-half bushel per agre for a grain crop. For a soiling or hay crop, sow in drills sixteen to twenty-four inches apart. Prepare the ground as for corn and low as soon as spring frosts are past. The Kansas experiment station recommends the early yellow, a medium early variety, to the farmers of that State. The very early kinds do not yield well and the late varieties will hardly mature as a rule in Indiana. The soy bean will yield ten to fifteen bushels of grain, or about two tons of hay to the acre in Indiana under good average "As a rule stock must learn to eat the hay, but they soon become fond of it. The grain is palatable, and also very digestible and nutritious. Soy bean meal may take the place of oil meal or cotton-seed meal in a feeding ration.

"Soy beans grow well and mature on Purdue experiment station farm. Others in the State have grown them successfully. Farmers who do not succeed with clover, will do well to try soy beans or cow peas. The latter will be a good soil renovating crop and the former may prove equally advantageous as a leguminous grain and forage crop in a rotation composed chiefly of cereals. The station has no soy beans for sale or distribution. The seed can usually be obtained from any of the large seeds-

THE WOMEN WOULD TALK.

And the Chairman Lacked Courage to Stop Them.

New York Evening Sun.

The women's meetings of the Ecumenical Conference have not been so particular about that time limit as the men's meetings. At one session last week in charge of the women, the chairman began by announcing that papers would be limited to ten minutes each, and that she would be obliged to keep to the rule, or they could not get through with the programm Miss Jones then arose to read the first paper, and after she had read for ten minutes there came a warning tap from the chair to which, however, Miss Jones paid no attention. Tap, tap, again from the chair, Miss Jones reading right on until a third and then a fourth tap when she glanced around apprehensively and asked: "Oh, must I stop? Why-" "It's the rule. said the chair, as suavely as possible. dear!" from Miss Jones: "Well, if it's the rule, I suppose—" Then up sprang a woman on the front row of seats-Miss ones's sister or cousin-probably. "Madame President," cried this woman, "I could sit here and listen to Miss Jones's paper all day!" "So could I!" "So could I!" hall to such an extent that the chair finally put it to vote whether or not Miss nes should continue her paper. The "yeas" had it, and Miss Jones proceeded upon her oratorical way for something like

"So do I!" followed from all parts of the hall, the matter being eventually put to vote, the "yeas" having it and Miss Smith proceeding upon her oratorical way to the extent of something like forty-five minutes. The consequence was the meeting got through just about one-fourth of its programme as scheduled.

TWO NEW YORKERS

One Gives the Other a Handy Lift.

Mr. E. C. Hazard, one of the oldest and best-known wholesale grocers in New York, has for many years given his attention to the preparation of fine food delicacies. He has a farm and experiment station down on Staten Island, where the famous Shrewsbury Ketchup, Burnt Onlen Sauce, Shrewsbury Mushrooms and other delicacies are prepared in a most skillful

One evening last autumn, while on his way home, Mr. H. sat with one of the officials of the N. J. C. Railroad, who seemed to be living with one foot in the gravestomach so badly disordered that nothing would digest. It seemed only a question of a few weeks at most when death would

"Mr. Hazard insisted upon taking the gentleman to his house and giving him a package of Grape-Nuts breakfast food. which is manufactured by the Postum Cereal Company at the pure-food factories at Battle Creek, Mich., a food which Mr. Hazard had been using at his own table for a long time, greatly to his benefit. "He told the gentleman that he cou get well in a few weeks by the use of perfectly prepared food of this sort, and would never forget the day when he first tried Grape-Nuts. The prediction came true; the official is not only alive to-day, but is in better health than he has experienced for many years, all of which he attributes to the use of Grape-Nuts, and from the ac vice of Mr. Hazard. There are two reasons for this; in the first place Grape-Nuts are made from certain selected portions of wheat and barley that contain phosphate of potash and albumen, which nature uses in the human system to make up the gray matter in the brain and nerve cepters throughout the

The nervous system directly controls the digestive machinery, and the brain controls the working and money-making came from others in various parts of the Mr. Hazard knows this, from his knowledge of foods and from his own experi with Grape-Nuts. Therefore, when he the railway official in charge, he knew exactly what he was doing, and the res
